A Baltimore jeweller has succeeded in engraving the letters of the alphabet in capitals on a pin head. As it was his first attempt and was done in an hour and a half with a common engraving instrument, he is proud of the job.

The meat packers in Chicago have succeeded in cornering the egg supply and have run the price up to 30 cents a dozen. This is taking a mean advantage of the hen as this is not her season for getting in her best work.

Some of the jewelry venders of Chicago would like to know the present whereabouts of Mrs. Celia Wallace, who at the World's Fair ball wore a $150,000 diamond dress, which was a stunner. She has disappeared with I. O. U's. out for $10,000 worth of jewelry.

A St. Louis woman wants a divorce because her husband runs a tandem bike, has a weakness for soothing and insists that she furnish her part of the motive power when he scorches. She didn't like it and the only way she sees for breaking up that tandem business is by a dissolution of partnership.

A Mississippi judge has recently decided that a negro's head is a deadly weapon. In that case it was used as a battering ram and knocked the stuffing out of another son of Ham. There is no law in that State against carrying deadly weapons of that kind, so the negro can be punished only for the use he made of the weapon.

President Roosevelt has given the loyal Republicans of Mississippi a jolt by appointing a Bryan Democrat district attorney and another B. D. U. S. marshal. He also turned down a veteran negro politician, who was register of the land office at Jackson and appointed a white Republican in his place.

OAKDALE CEMETERY.

Annual Meeting of Lot Owners and Board of Directors Last Night.

AMENDMENTS TO CHARTER.

Certain Changes Regarding Name and Perpetual Care Fund Were Effected. Expressions Upon Mr. Chadbourn's Death—Officers.

The annual meeting of lot owners in Oakdale cemetery was held last night at the office of the secretary and treasurer, Mr. Richard J. Jones, No. 205½ Princess street. Features of the meeting were the reading of the annual reports, the election of officers and directors and the adoption of an amendment to the constitution with reference to the "Perpetual Agreement Fund" and in conformity to an act passed by the last Legislature.

There was a good attendance and Mr. W. H. Chadbourn was called to the chair, Mr. Richard J. Jones, in his accustomed place as secretary. After dispensing with routine work, the report of the secretary and treasurer was read by Mr. J. C. Stevenson. It was carefully prepared in detail and indicated skilled management of the cemetery and a healthy condition of the finances of the company. There was a balance Jan. 1st of $22,280.89 to the credit of the general fund and $15,193 to the "Perpetual Care Fund." The report dealt in detail with the establishment and growth of the latter fund and was preparatory to the change in constitution effected later. Mr. Stevenson, in reading the report of Mr. Jones, paid a high tribute to that official and the neatness of his valuable report.

The report of Mr. Timothy Donlan, the superintendent of the cemetery, was also read by Mr. Stevenson and is as follows:

Number of interments, 119, of which 95 died in Wilmington, and 29 were brought here for burial. Number of removals, 17, of which 13 were made on the cemetery and 5 were taken out; 4 to High Point, N. C., and one to Richmond, Va. Lots sold, 23½; lots put on "perpetual care list," 21½; lots kept in order, 560, of which 173 are on the perpetual care list. Neglected lots cleaned once in April and once in September, 450. No charge made and 121 lots kept in order which are staked on the new grounds and ready for sale; on which grass has been planted and some 120 trees and plants set out and all doing well, as you well know. We do not plant trees in Oakdale only to grow.

Much care is given to the new sections lately opened to bring that part of the cemetery up to, if not to surpass, the other portions in beauty. I am still working on those new grounds, having done little at this work during the Summer months and having a large amount of material to remove so as to get the proper grade, so as to get the best result in grading grounds. The best results are from large sections when opened, as the removal of sand is done by levelling up the valleys at some places, or in other words, doing two things at one and the same time. This is where the saving comes in.

During the past year I have macadamized 450 square yards of road. The rock is on that drive leading from Geo. W. Williams' lot to and around the Summer house, and from the present outlook this Spring by paving the gutters and terracing the banks along this drive. I am levelling an avenue just north of the Jewish lot, which required a large amount of filling in, and when levelled up will place rock on it. A large amount I have already crushed. Of this I got much of it the past year for merely the hauling, which cost about 75c. per cubic yard. Hereafter it will cost 30c. more as the owner wants pay for it.

I have had drilled a well, 42½ feet, mostly through rock, as the ground where I put it is only about six feet about water level. When drilled through a very hard rock water raised 34 feet in the pipes. The drill was 3-inch inside of a 2½ inch pipe. It cost, everything included, $32. A large amount of work has been done the past year for which no charge has been made; 680 graves turfed and 560 tombstones and monuments cleaned. This class of work is increasing and will in time require a large amount of labor. In some of the lots to-day are ten or more monuments and headstones to be kept clean and graves returfed.

The past year 3,000 feet of fence has been repaired and 4,000 feet whitewashed. The stock consists of three mules, three carts and harness, one road roller and double set of harness, engine house and engine and rock crusher and the necessary tools, summer house, the lodge and furniture and tool house, stables and lime and hay house, 150 cubic yards of rock, 600 feet of grave stone, 1,000 brick, 500 feet pipe and the general working tools. I have saved four tons of hay.

Mr. Stevenson next made his report as president, which was verbal. He said it would be superfluous to attempt to add anything to the two excellent reports just submitted; all the active work was covered in them but he would say the policy of improvement, entered upon last year, had gone steadily forward. The work was being done in a very conservative way and the directors endorsed it. No disaster had come to the invested fund in 35 years, save the failure of the Bank of New Hanover and that involved less than $300.

He feelingly announced the death of Mr. James H. Chadbourn, a member of the Board of Directors, and paid a beautiful tribute to his memory.

Mr. Jacobi spoke upon the conclusion of Mr. Stevenson's report and moved for a committee to draft suitable resolutions but he was informed that that painful duty had already been considered by the directors.

Mr. Stevenson read the proposed amendments to the constitution, and by authority of an act of the last Legislature the name of the cemetery owners was changed in the charter from "proprietors of the Wilmington Cemetery" to the "Oakdale Cemetery Company." The other change, likewise by authority of the Legislature, was made. It creates a Board of Trustees for the "Perpetual Agreement Fund" and provides that the fund shall be used in no other way than that of keeping the lots of those who have contributed to the fund.

The next business transacted was the re-election of Mr. J. C. Stevenson as president and the choosing of the following directors: Owen Fennell, W. W. Yopp, W. H. Northrop, Hugh MacRae, J. L. Cantwell and W. H. Chadbourn, the last named being to succeed his brother, the lamented Mr. James H. Chadbourn.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors the re-election of Mr. Stevenson was confirmed and Messrs. Richard J. Jones and Timothy Donlan were re-elected to the offices of secretary and treasurer and superintendent, respectively.

The re election of a Board of Trustees for the "Perpetual Fund" was suggested, but it was deemed expedient to postpone its choice until the next regular meeting, which will be held on the grounds of the cemetery.

Capt. Northrop then read the expressions concerning Mr. Chadbourn's death which are published in another column. Mr. Jones called attention to the singular coincidence that Mr. Chadbourn died on the 26th anniversary of his first election as a director and that upon the day of his funeral, his cherished idea of a change in the "perpetual care fund" was introduced into the constitution.

WILL ATTEND THE GRAND LODGE.

Masons Assemble in Raleigh To-night. Great Year for the Order.

A number of the Wilmington Masons will leave to-day to attend the 115th annual communication of the Grand Lodge at Raleigh, beginning at 7:30 o'clock to-night.

The past year has been one of the most successful the Masons of North Carolina have ever experienced. The report of Grand Secretary John C. Drewry, shows that there are a total of 12,012 Masons in the State, which is an increase of over 400 in membership. Eight new lodges were organized last year, one revived and four surrendered their charters. The number of lodges in the jurisdiction is 334. The number of initiations last year were 975, the number admitted 267, the number reinstated was 114, the number suspended 47, the number expelled 17, the number withdrawn 419 and the number died 206. Receipts from all sources were $7,647.55, of which $7 394.05 was from lodge dues and $100 being the bequest of Mrs. Rebecca Baird.

In 1895, the total receipts of the Grand Lodge were $4,799.50; the total receipts this year, as shown above, are $7,647 55, or an increase in receipts of about 70 per cent. At the time the number of Master Masons in good standing in North Carolina was 9,824; now there is a total membership of 12,012, which is an increase of over 20 per cent.

DEATH OF A GOOD WOMAN.

Mrs. Sallie Bierman Quietly Passed Away Sunday Morning After Short Illness.

After an illness of only eight days with pneumonia, Mrs. Sallie Bierman, wife of Wilmington's esteemed townsman, Mr. H. J. Bierman, died Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the family residence, No. 412 North Third street. The news of her taking-away is deeply deplored by a large circle of friends, attracted to her by her genial disposition and sweet Christian character. During the first few days of her illness very strong hopes of her ultimate recovery were cherished, but complications of heart trouble set in and she died within a very short time.

Mrs. Bierman was a consistent member of St. Andrews' Presbyterian church and always took an active interest in church work.

She is survived by a sorrowing husband, Mr. H. J. Bierman, three small children, four brothers and one sister: Mr. Willis Turlington, of Bennettsville, S. C.; Mr. W. B. Turlington, of Baltimore; Mr. E. E. Turlington, of New York; Mr. B. F. Turlington and Miss Jennie Turlington, of this city.

The funeral will be conducted from St. Andrews' church to-day at 11 A. M. and the interment will be in Oakdale.

UNIVERSITY BALL GAMES.

Partial Schedule of Contests This Season. Very Bright Prospects.

Much Wilmington interest always attends the University baseball games during the Summer and from the fact that Wilmington will have no sport of its own in this particular, most probably this season, the interest will be even greater. From an esteemed correspondent at Chapel Hill, the STAR has received the following partial schedule, which will be supplemented by games with the State colleges and two others with Virginia:

March 24th and 25th, LaFayette at Chapel Hill; 27th, Gallaudet at Chapel Hill; 29th, Clemson at Charlotte; 31st, Lehigh at Winston; April 1st, Lehigh at Chapel Hill; 5th, Cornell at Chapel Hill; 16th and 17th, Georgia at Chapel Hill; 22d, Richmond at Chapel Hill; May 3d, Virginina at Raleigh or Norfolk; 6th, Wofford at Spartanburg; 7th, Clemson at Clemson; 8th, Georgia at Athens; 9th, Mercer at Macon; 10th, Georgia Tech. at Atlanta.

"The prospects are exceedingly bright," writes the correspondent, "and the universal opinion is that we will have the fastest team in the South."

JAMES H. CHADBOURN

Long and Useful Career Came to an End Early Sunday Morning.

THE FUNERAL YESTERDAY.

Held From St. James' Episcopal Church in the Presence of Many—School Interests Represented and Expressions of Great Regret.

In the presence of a large concourse of friends and relatives the order for the burial of the dead was impressively said over the remains of the late lamented James Harmon Chadbourn in St. James' Episcopal church yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, the services having been conducted by the Rt. Rev. Bishop A. A. Watson, of the East Carolina Diocese, assisted by the Rev. Frederick H. T. Horsfield, rector of the parish.

Largely represented at the funeral were the school interests of the city with which Mr. Chadbourn was so long identified as chairman of Wilmington School Committee No. 2. Out of respect to his memory and as a mark of appreciation of his unselfish and beautiful devotion to the work of education during his long and useful career, all the schools of the city suspended exercises for the day and nearly all the teachers and a creditable number of pupils from every department were present to do him honor. Included in the number were members of the faculty of the colored institutions; all gathered in the common purpose to show appreciation for duty faithfully performed.

Many of the schools and a number of the classes sent beautiful floral tributes.

The death of Mr. Chadbourn was feelingly announced at the High School upon the assembly of the students by Superintendent Blair, who paid a deserved and beautiful tribute to the deceased gentleman.

Mr. Chadbourn being also closely in touch with the shipping interests of the port, all the flags of the harbor craft were at half mast during the day and many of the marine men were in attendance upon the funeral. The Wilmington Compress and Warehouse Company, of which deceased was a director, was also closed out of respect to his memory.

The Produce Exchange, of which he was a member, was appropriately draped in mourning and many of the members attended the funeral in a body.

The interment was in Oakdale cemetery immediately after the services at the church, and the pallbearers were: Honorary, Messrs. Junius Davis, James Sprunt, B. G. Worth and R. J. Jones; active, Messrs. Geo. Kidder, W. R. Kenan, J. J. Blair, Donald MacRae, Jas. F. Post, Samuel Northrop, Wm. Latimer and Henry Savage.

The STAR only briefly mentioned the death of Mr. Chadbourn Sunday morning on account of the lateness of the hour at which he died. Mr. Chadbourn was born in Sanford, Maine, Nov. 6th, 1822, and was therefore in the eightieth year of his age. His parents were Mr. George and Mrs. Asenath Chadbourn. In 1844 he came South and engaged in the turpentine business for three years at Shallotte, Brunswick county, N. C. In 1847 he came to Wilmington and resided here until his death. For a time he was engaged in the commission business, but very soon he began in the lumber mill industry as senior member of the firm of James H. Chadbourn & Co., in which he continued until his death. The mill is one of the largest in the South and is considered in the front rank of Wilmington's enterprises. The original members of the firm were Mr. Jas. H. Chadbourn and his brother, Mr. George Chadbourn. After the death of the latter his son, Mr. James H. Chadbourn, Jr., became a member of the firm, of which Mr. Wm. H. Chadbourn, brother of deceased, is also a member.

In October, 1858, Mr. Chadbourn married Miss Mary Ann Bluxome, of Philadelphia, and she with three sons and one daughter survive him and have the tenderest sympathy of numerous friends. They are Messrs. Jos. B., Charles C. Steven H. Chadbourn and Miss Serena Chadbourn, all of this city. There are also surviving a brother, Mr. Wm. H. Chadbourn, of Wilmington, and a sister, Mrs. John P. Gailey, of Sanford, Me.

In the death of Mr. Chadbourn, Wilmington loses a most estimable citizen and the family is deprived of a loving husband and father. His life was one of great usefulness to the community in which he lived. His character was above reproach, his business ability unquestioned and his motives pure and noble. In the educational field, the brightest side of his life was apparent. He was devoted to the public schools of Wilmington and their present great efficiency is due in a large measure to his zealous work in their behalf. Only a short time ago, it was through his influences, conjointly with those of Mr. James F. Post, that the present High school building was given to the city and hundreds of other instances could be cited exemplifying his superb work in this regard.

Mr. Chadbourn was chairman of the Board of Commissioners of Navigation from 1888 to 1890. During that time he saved about $4,000 from fees, fines and licenses. Through his efforts the legislature passed an act guarding this money so that the income from that source could be expended each month for the destitute widows and orphans of pilots. This charity fund has proved and is still proving a wonderful blessing.

Wilmington has lost few such valuable citizens as Mr. Chadbourn and his place in the community will be exceedingly difficult to fill by another.

COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD.

Apportionment is a Difficult Proposition. Recess Until To-night—Petition to Remove Acorn Branch School.

The County Board of Education, Col. W. A. Johnson, the chairman, and Capt. Donald MacRae in attendance, held the regular meeting for January yesterday afternoon. The main purpose of the meeting was to apportion the school fund for the ensuing six months, but the work was found so tedious that a recess had to be taken after 6 P. M., until to-night at 8 o'clock when the apportionment will be completed.

It is also probable that at the meeting to-night a successor will be elected to the lamented James H. Chadbourn as member of the committee for Wilmington School District No 2. The two remaining members of the committee are Capt. W. R. Kenan and Mr. Samuel Northrop.

The Board yesterday found time to hear a committee consisting of Messrs. F. J. Dempsey, W. F. Kerr, J. W. Murray and R. S. Murray, who petitioned that the school house for whites in District No. 6, (Acorn Branch,) Cape Fear township, be removed to a more central location in the district. It was pointed out that many children had to walk three or four miles to reach the school, whereas a central location would make the distance more uniform for all. The Board was very favorable to the proposition of the committee, but took the matter under advisement for further investigation.

The apportionment of the fund will likely be concluded to-night. There is about $6,000 in the fund in excess of the amount available last year. The total fund is about $29,000.

HIS DEATH DEPLORED.

Directors of Oakdale Cemetery Company Adopted Fitting Tribute to Memory of Mr. James H. Chadbourn.

At the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Oakdale Cemetery Company last night, Capt. W. H. Northrop read the following expression of regret at the removal from the Board of its valued member, the lamented James H. Chadbourn, and the same was unanimously adopted by a rising vote:

"The death of Mr. James H. Chadbourn, our friend and associate upon this Board of Directors, removes from our midst the oldest and one of its most zealous members. Having been a director for twenty-six years he never tired of its service though at times during the latter years it was a tax upon his strength and convenience. The predominant traits which made him eminently successful as a man of affairs and marked him in our community as among its most prominent citizens, contributed to make him an invaluable member of this Board.

"He was always on hand to the minute to fill every appointment. He allowed no excuse to shield him from the burden of any duty or obligation incident to his office. His judgment was always with justice and moderation. He approved with no ostentation. He differed with the most punctillious courtesy. His modesty pervaded every act of his life and gave greater force to his opinions.

"We mourn his loss as sincere friends; we deplore the privation of his counsel. We tender to his loved ones our sincere sympathy.

"It is, therefore, ordered that as a mark of respect that a page in our records be dedicated to his memory, upon which shall be inscribed his name, date of birth and death, and these resolutions. It is also ordered that a copy of these resolutions be suitably prepared and a committee be appointed to convey them to his family."

Captain Northrop supplemented the reading of the expression with a beautiful tribute to the life and character of the deceased, and, upon motion, the president appointed Mr. Richard J. Jones, Col. Jno. L. Cantwell and Captain Northrop to prepare the same and transmit a copy to members of the family.

"The Evolution of a Girl."

Dr. William Edwin Hall's second appearance in the city to-night is stirring such an interest as was never witnessed before by any popular lecturer. His visit last March showed him to be a wit, humorist and philosopher. People by the scores laughed, wept and paused from everything else to hear and see him. He has, so it is said, saved his best for to-night in "The Evolution of a Girl." It is a subject suited to Dr. Hall's taste and genius. After hearing him to-night one will say that he or she never knew what was in a woman's heart before. Tickets at Yates' and at the door. Place, First Baptist church lecture room.

Funeral of a Little Child.

The funeral of little Charles Maunder, whose tragic death at the family home in Portsmouth last Friday has been told of in these columns, was conducted Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of Mr. Geo. N. Hughes, Eighth and Harnett streets, Rev. J. N. Cole, pastor of Grace church, officiating. The remains were tenderly laid to rest in Bellevue, the following gentlemen having acted as pallbearers: Messrs. James Hughes, Robert Hughes, J. O. Powers and D. W. Chadwick.

— The STAR regrets to learn of the serious illness of Mr. Hugh Sweeney, the venerable father of Wilmington's esteemed citizen and Alderman, Mr. Jno. H. Sweeney.

Mr. LeRoy Baxter Rogers, vice-president of the D. L. Gore Company, wholesale grocers, and a young man highly esteemed by hundreds of friends in Wilmington, left yesterday afternoon via the W. C. & A. railroad for Rock Hill, S. C., on a very pleasant mission.

At 8:30 o'clock this evening he will lead to the altar in marriage, Mrs. Blanche Stewart McAlhaney, Rev. J. S. Beasley, pastor of the Methodist church at Rock Hill officiating. The wedding will be a very quiet one and will take place at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stewart, after which the bride and groom will leave on the 10:30 P. M. train for Charleston, S. C., where they will spend a few days at the Exposition, returning to Wilmington, their future home, on Friday afternoon. They will be at home after that date at Front and Church streets.

Mr. Rogers was accompanied to Rock Hill by his friend, Mr. Frank S. Westbrook, who will act as best man.

AN EARLY MORNING BLAZE.

Fire at Col. Walker Taylor's Residence On Market Street at 12:13 A. M.

This morning at 12:13 o'clock a telephone alarm of fire brought the department to the residence of Col. Walker Taylor, No. 714 Market street, where a blaze had gained considerable headway from a defective fireplace. The flames, however, were soon subdued but not before a damage of about $300 had resulted to the building and furniture.

As Col. Walker Taylor is one of the most enterprising of the enterprising insurance agents in the city, it is presumed the loss was fully covered in one or more of the well known companies represented by his agency.

BY WILLIAM H. BERNARD

WILMINGTON, N. C.

TUESDAY MORNING, JAN. 14.

"LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE."

"Let well enough alone," was one of Senator's Hanna's standing phrases in the speeches he made in the campaign of 1900. That's what he used to say to the workmen in reply to the demand for tariff reform. He contended that the prosperity of the country was the result of the protective tariff and that as the country was doing so well with it, it would be folly to change it, and make new experiments. The true and sensible policy he contended was to "let well enough alone." As far as the tariff goes Senator Hanna sticks to that yet and therefore opposes any tariff revision even where the beneficiaries of this protection are competing with foreign manufacturers and boast that they can make goods for less money than they can. But he is opposed to any reduction of the tariff, although the protection given by the tariff was professedly to protect them from the "cheaper labor" their foreign competitors had. He answers all that with "better let well enough alone."

Senator Hanna is one of the leading promoters of the ship subsidy bill. He proposes to give the ship owners who sail ships under the American flag $180,000,000, the argument for this being that an American merchant marine is necessary to build up our commerce and enable our exporters and importers to compete successfully with the exporters and importers of other countries which have the advantage of a merchant marine of their own. If we had little commerce or if our commerce were languishing there might be some plausibility in a pretence like that, but our commerce is not languishing but is growing more rapidly than that of any other nation, including Great Britain which has the greatest merchant marine in the world, which by the way, was built without subsidies only about three per cent. of her ships receiving subsidies of any kind and there for carrying the mails.

There is no sentiment in figures, but they sometimes speak with an eloquence and force that language does not possess. When the advocates of subsidies declare they are necessary to promote our commerce and enable our shippers to compete with the shippers of other countries they find themselves confronted by figures that are unanswerable and that tell their own story. A summary recently issued by the Treasury gives the export and imports of the leading commercial countries of the world in 1890 compared with those of 1900, with the changes in the meantime. The following table gives the exports in 1890 and 1900 with the percentage of gain:

	1890	1900	Gain per cent.
United Kingdom	$1,578,471,592	$1,417,085,870	0.5
United States	845,953,823	1,370,758,571	62.2

France	757,181,161	901,458,000	19.1

Italy	174,917,444	258,981,527	49.4

The following table shows the changes in the decade:

United States	$1,499,848,920	34.56
United Kingdom	1,902,675,000	17.97
Germany	1,054,982,000	20.7.
France	771,748,000	20.21

Belgium	338,920,000	87.10
Russia	387,868,871	2.31
Italy	361,892,332	6.73

The following table shows the imports and the excess of imports or exports in 1890:

	Imports.	Excess of imports.	Excess of exports.
United Kingdom	$2,545,54[illegible]	$1,1 8,459,0[illegible]	$
Germany	372,216,000	274,707,000
France	372,231,441	70 74,815
U S	849,941,184		500,8[illegible]
Netherlands	914,0[illegible]	214,0[illegible]
Belgium	427,640,332	56,521,675
Austria-Hungary	394,276,5[illegible]		49,865,893
Russia	334,999,759	12,103,679
Italy	123,145,4[illegible]	69,8[illegible],956
British India	947,140,848		92,494,981

In nearly all the countries of the world the imports exceed the exports, this country being one of the few exceptions. Our exports are increasing annually, while our imports are decreasing. We have the advantage of every other country in the world, for we not only produce foodstuffs to supply the home demand for consumption, but always have a surplus to sell to other nations which need foodstuffs and do not produce what they need. We produce two-thirds of the world's supply of cotton, so that we are a leading factor both in feeding and clothing the people of other nations. For years to come we will hold that position, for no other nation can compete with us as a food producer or cotton producer, whether they have so-called "cheap labor" or not.

It is not a matter of choice with other nations to buy our foodstuffs or our cotton. They buy them because they need them, and can't get them from other countries as cheaply as they can from us. Having our own ships wouldn't sell for us another bushel of wheat, barrel of pork or bale of cotton, and consequently would not increase our commerce in these things.

Who can read these tables, note the progress that this country has made in increasing its foreign commerce, and say or believe an American merchant marine is necessary to promote our commerce or to maintain what we have? These figures speak for themselves and they speak with a force and a logic that no language could equal, for they present a story of progress equalled by no country in the world and never equalled by any country. And all this has been without a merchant marine of our own or subsidized ships.

Doesn't it seem when the American people are asked to tax themselves $9,000,000 a year to promote a commerce that has made such marvelous progress, that Mr. Hanna's advice, "let well enough alone," would come in?

ANOTHER TRUST.

A report comes from New York that a trust company will shortly be established with a capital of $1,000,000, the object of which is to build warehouses in agricultural sections and lend money to farmers who want to hold their crops for higher prices. The movers and associates in this scheme are New York capitalists, railroad presidents and Southern capitalists, who propose to erect warehouses, beginning in the South, where imperishable products may be stored, on which money will be loaned to farmers who want to borrow.

There may be something in this, but if this company means business it will have to put in more than $1,000,000 to render material service. Every year for the past eight or ten years, we have had reports similar to this, beginning away back there, with an announcement that the Farmers' Alliance had made arrangements with an English syndicate of unlimited capital to build warehouses in the cotton belt and lend the planters money, taking as security the cotton stored. But none of these warehouses were built. Since then we have had a number of such schemes reported, but none of them, so far as we know, have materialized. Our impression is that a warehouse for this purpose was established at Charlotte by local capitalists, but we have not heard much about that or what progress it has made.

There is a field in this for capitalists, who could find paying investment for their money and at the same time help the farmers, but no small amount of capital would answer the purpose unless there were a good many companies, each operating in its own section. In order to benefit the farmers much it would be necessary to advance a large amount of money to enable them to hold back enough of their crops to affect prices, if that be the object. But it would be a convenience to the farmer to be able to borrow such amount of money as he needed, with cotton, wheat or something of that kind as collateral, and in this way it would render service even if it had no effect on prices.

IT DOESN'T PAY.

This State was among the first to try to solve the problem of making its penitentiary self-sustaining without employing its convicts so as to come into competition with outside labor. It leased and bought farms on which it put the convicts to work. While this is better than employing them in making shoes, clothing and other things in which their work would come into competition with outside work, it does not pay, for chances must be taken on unfavorable seasons, damage by droughts, floods, &c.

This system has proved so unsatisfactory that the State has given up its farms in Anson county and would save money by getting rid of its farms on the Roanoke, in which it invested about $70,000 and where it has lost in the past two years about $45,000 by damage to dykes, caused by freshets. And that is something that is liable to happen any year.

As we understand it the object of working the criminals on farms is not to make money for the State, but to make the convicts self-supporting. If they were made self-supporting in some other way, and at the same time so employed as to aid in the development and improvement of the State, wouldn't it be better? They could be better employed to build railroads, (as some of them now are) in working on the county roads, (as some of them are), or in draining some of the swamp lands, (where that is practicable). There are several ways in which they could be employed and made self-supporting without coming into competition with outside labor, or running the risk of bad crops, damage by freshets, etc.

The battleship Mikasa, just completed in England for Japan, is said to be the largest battleship afloat. She is 432 feet long, 70 feet beam, draws 27 feet of water and has 15,000 horse-power. She has a speed of 18 knots an hour and can steam 9,000 miles at ten miles an hour without re coaling. She is equipped up-to-date with heavy pounders and rapid firers.

Georgia had one of the biggest chicken fries on record a few days ago. An incubating establishment on a farm near Marietta was burned and three thousand chickens went up in it.

A French officer, just returned to Paris from China, was surprised at the independence of the American soldiers, their familiarity with their officers, etc., etc., but says that when it comes to fighting these independent fellows are rattling good fighters. This independence, another word for assertive individuality, goes far to account for the fight that is in them.

The Republicans in the Ohio Legislature want it to appropriate some money to aid in securing a new trial for Caleb Powers, convicted of complicitly in the murder of Governor Goebel, and sentenced to the penitentiary. As all they ask for is $1,000 they might if they take so much interest in Caleb, put their hands in their pockets and shell out.

When he winds up his case with that New York cabman, Mr. Carlisle, formerly Secretary of the Treasury, will be out about $1,300. Three years ago he had the cabman arrested on a charge of stealing Mrs. Carlisle's fur cape, valued at $300. The cabman was acquitted and then sued for false imprisonment and got a verdict for $1,000. As the cape is still missing this foots up $1.300.

CURRENT COMMENT

—It is reported from China that the royal family, in its progress to Pekin, completed any work of devastation overlooked by the European troops. It is no wonder that Minister Wu as an intelligent and philanthropic gentlemau is anxious to get as many Chinamen as possible over to this country.—Washington Star Rep.

—The President may soothe the wounded feelings of General Miles by sending him to King Edward's coronation. But it cost the general $10,000 out of his private purse to represent the United States at the queen's last jubilee and it may be that he does not care to invest in a coronation frolic.—Atlanta Journal, Dem.

—The circulation of a letter by Secretary Long on the Sampson-Schley controversy among Congressmen taken in connection with the Miles and the Mahan episodes, does not look much like closing the case. It looks a good deal more like choking off one side to leave free range to the other. It remains to be seen how such tactics will chime in with the public's idea of fair play.—Baltimore Ameaican, Rep.

—The main objection of ex-Governor Shaw to accepting the office of Secretary of the Treasury was in its salary of $8,000 a year. Nearly if not quite the whole of this would go for house rent, to say nothing of the other heavy expenditures for entertainments, etc., required by the position. It is not strange that ex Governor Shaw should have hesitated. What is remarkable is the fact that the salary of a cabinet officer in Washington should be $8,000 and the salary of a commission in Manila $15,000.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

— Durham Herald: The funeral of the late Miss Pattie Mangum was conducted from the old home place Friday afternoon. One peculiar thing in connection with the burying of Miss Mangum was the fact that the grave extends from north to south, instead of from east to west, as is the custom. This was in deference to the wishes of the deceased. Years ago she requested that when she died that she be laid to rest at the feet of her father and mother, whose memory she almost idolized. Her wishes were carried out to the letter. Further particulars regarding her rather sudden death were learned from those who attended the funeral. On Thursday morning, as was her custom, Miss Mangum drank a cup of coffee before arranging her toilet. She then remained in bed a short while and in conversation with her neice, Miss Presley Leach, Miss Mangum said that she dreamed she died during the night and that her death was like that of her sister, Miss Mary, very easy. After this she arose and prepared her toilet for the day and sat down. A few minutes later she complained of a severe pain in her head and fell forward from the chair, dying without a struggle.

POLA LOVED HIM.

Samoan Boy Who Wanted to Own a Portrait of Stevenson.

After Mr. Stevenson's death so many of his Samoan friends begged for his photograph that we sent to Sydney for a supply, which was soon exhausted. One afternoon Pola came in and remarked in a very hurt and an aggrieved manner that he had been neglected in the way of photographs.

"But your father, the chief, has a large, fine one."

"True," said Pola. "But that is not mine. I have the box presented to me by your high chief goodness. It has a little cover, and there I wish to put the sun shadow of Tusitala, the beloved chief whom we all revere, but I more than the others, because he was the head of my clan."

"To be sure," I said, and looked about for a photograph. I found a picture cut from a weekly paper, one I remembered that Mr. Stevenson himself had particularly disliked. He would have been pleased had he seen the scornful way Pola threw the picture on the floor.

"I will not have that!" he cried. "It is pig faced. It is not the shadow of our chief." He leaned against the door and wept.

"I have nothing else, Pola," I protested. "Truly, if I had another picture of Tusitala I would give it to you."

He brightened up at once. "There is the one in the smoking room," he said, "where he walks back and forth. That pleases me, for it looks like him." He referred to an oil painting of Mr. Stevenson by Sargent. I explained that I could not give him that. "Then I will take the round one," he said, "of tin." This last was the bronze bas-relief by St. Gaudens. I must have laughed involuntarily, for he went out deeply hurt. Hearing a strange noise in the hall an hour or so later. I opened the door and discovered Pola lying on his face, weeping bitterly.

"What are you crying about?" I asked.

"The shadow, the shadow!" he sobbed. "I want the sun shadow of Tusitala."

I knocked at my mother's door across the hall, and at the sight of that tear stained face her heart melted, and he was given the last photograph we had, which he wrapped in a banana leaf, tying it carefully with a ribbon of grass.—Scribner's Magazine.

COME JUST TOO LATE.

SOME PEOPLE ALWAYS LEFT BEHIND BY THE OCEAN LINERS.

They Are Known as Laggers Along the New York Steamship Piers, and They Generally Manage to Raise a Rumpus on the Dock.

"There he comes," growled the old watchman at the entrance to the steamship pier, swishing his stick as a hansom clattered circuitously through the jam of wagons and trucks.

The warm looking man in the cab was wriggling around in the seat and bawling at the driver to make haste, and the jehu in turn was howling at the truckmen under the shed to turn out and give him room. The "All ashore!" and "All aboard!" words had already been passed on the steamer and on the pier, and the unshipping of the gangways was in progress.

"I was waiting for him," went on the old pier watchman. "I knew he'd be along. I wouldn't have felt comfortable if he hadn't showed up. I don't think a ship could have any luck on her passage if there wasn't at least one of 'em. Sometimes there are several of 'em."

"Several what?"

"Laggers, we call 'em," replied the old watchman—"folks that stop on their way to a steamer to play marbles or jacks or pegtop—the ones that come scrambling along when the chief engineer's standing by to get his first bells from the bridge. I've been standing watch along the fronts of these docks since the days when the side wheel packets had the passenger trade of the western ocean, and not once have I seen a boat all ready to slide out without one or more of these laggers banging up at the last minute.

"They're about equally divided between men and women. And when they're left they always carry on in a bughouse manner. If the lagger is a man, he'll as likely as not dance around on the end of the pier, and shake his fist at the ship out in the stream, and bawl about the thing being a put up job, and threaten to sue the company or burn down the pier, and keep up a 'cussin' like Horrible Bill, and abuse the agent and all the rest of the company employees on the dock, and act in general like a longshoreman with two quarts of the barrel house stuff under his belt strap.

"When the lagger that's left is a woman, she acts differently, of course, but she gives us a run for our money at that. She generally stands on the dock and after handing her bag and parasol and gear to her maid yanks out her handkerchief and weeps. Then when the first misery of it's over she gets mad and begins to say things. She always declares that the ship has got under way at least two hours ahead of its advertised schedule time, and the more she talks the hotter she gets. When she at length suddenly remembers that most of her clothes and jewelry are on the ship, that's about rounding Governors island at that time, she gets hysterical, and when a woman gets hysterical on a steamship dock you can bet that there's plenty doing for all hands and the cook.

"Funny thing about the woman lagger who's left and whose clothes are aboard the steamer that's gone off without her is that she wants to send about a dozen cable dispatches right from the dock before the ship's got as far as the Battery about what's to be done with her trunks when the steamer reaches the other side. There is no use trying to tell her that she's got plenty of time for that and that she would do better to think it over during the five or six days that it takes the steamer to cross. She seems to have the idea firmly fixed in her mind that the company's going to try to rob her of her gear and that the ship's due in Europe some time before lunch and if she doesn't do a lot of cabling before she quits the dock she's due to lose her wardrobe and gewgaws.

"Some of the women laggers that get left, though, don't get weepy a little bit, but the conversation that they work off when they see the ship belching black smoke out in the channel is some sultry and no mistake. One of these women that sing in grand opera, a foreign woman of some kind she was, French or gingney or something like that, came racing down in an automobile about three months ago, only two minutes after the ship had set her nose down the bay. Well, say, I was glad then that I didn't know any foreign languages, for if I'd known what she was saying I'll bet a hat I'd have been shriveled up. She just stood on the end of the dock and talked at the state of New Jersey over the way.

"She was a fine, handsome, big woman, and they tell me that on the stage she sings like a bird on an apple limb, but there wasn't any sing in her voice that morning. You'd have thought she was tearing up the old man for coming home on a Saturday night with a bun on and breaking the crockery in the cupboard. I'm telling you straight that she swept up and down that pier for 30 minutes talking without a break, and I saw all the gingey truckmen on the dock crossing themselves and sticking their fingers in their ears, so that she must have been whooping it up a-plenty.

"She tossed her head around so much that all of the combs and hairpins came out of her hair, and the fine, glossy black bunch tumbled down below her waist without her knowing anything about it. She certainly made a fine picture, but her maid didn't appear to be enjoying herself a little bit. The maid was dead careful to circle around the singing woman at an average distance of about 14 feet. I guess the maid was thinking about her own hair. There was enough excitement that morning on this dock to last for quite a bit."

Just then a sleepy looking messenger boy plodded up to the pier entrance, carrying a splendid basket of choice fruits.

"She gone yet?" inquired the sleepy looking messenger of the old watchman.

"Nope, son," said the watchman—the ship had departed about half an hour before. "Hand it over, and I'll get it aboard."

The messenger passed the ornate basket of fruit over to the old watchman and shambled away.

"If there's any one thing that me and my old wife like," remarked the old watchman, holding up the basket and gazing admiringly at its contents, "it's fruit."—New York Sun.

SPONGES AND SPONGERS.

The sponge industry of the United States is carried on in the waters surrounding the Florida keys.

The fishing grounds extend along the south and west coasts of the peninsula and have a total area of from 2,000 to 3,000 square miles.

Key West is the center of the industry and New York city is the receiving and distributing point for the product.

Two hundred small boats and several schooners, managed by about 800 spongers, are regularly engaged in the fishing.

The annual crop of sponges is between 5,000 and 6,000 bales, and would be many times greater but for the ignorance and impatience of fishermen in not allowing time for the "baby sponges" to mature.

Repeated attempts at planting and cultivating the sponges artificially have proved unsuccessful.

The estimated value of Florida's annual crop of sponges is about $550,000.

The quality of the Florida sponge ranks next to that of the West India, the Mediterranean and the Red sea.

The real Turkish sponges are found only in the beds of the Mediterranean, and sell readily for as high a price as $50 and even $70 a pound.

Next in quality to the Turkish sponge is our own Florida sheep's wool sponge, so named because of its softness and fineness of texture, which sells at from $1 to $3 a pound.

The average weight of a sponge when placed on the market is from one ounce to one pound. Only the small sizes are found in American waters.

It requires from three to seven years for a sponge to mature and reach marketable size.

Stage Story of a Tree.

Mr. Beaumont's first London engagement was to play in "The Star of India," one of Arthur Shirley's stirring melodramas. His great moment was when he had to bind the hero to a stump of an "ancient tree," in a very beautiful jungle setting. There was a dark change from an interior to the jungle, and one night when Mr. Beaumont and the hero rushed on they were horrified to discover that the tree was missing. Mr. Beaumont at once made up his mind to speak his lines just the same and drag the hero out of sight.

Unfortunately, the men under the stage were under an impression that the lights were still lowered, and just as Mr. Beaumont cried in his loudest voice that the hero should be lashed to the trunk of a tree they pushed the tree up through the floor. The audience, after a moment of utter amazement, burst into a roar of laughter and applause at the expense of the struggling hero and enraged villain.—Mainly About People.

Frigga.

Frigga, from whom Friday is derived, was either a god or a goddess, according to time and country. As a man he was a great hunter and warrior, always represented with a drawn sword in one hand and a bow in the other. In the Scandinavian countries Frigga was called the "Venus of the North," and the sixth day of the week was consecrated to her worship.

SOUVENIR HUNTERS.

THE TRAIL OF THE VANDAL IN THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

All the Noted Show Places of Washington Bear Glaring Evidences of His Destructive Touch—A Culprit With a Conscience.

Nearly every tourist who visits Washington wants to take away a souvenir. Souvenir stores in the national capital are as plenty as saloons, but your true souvenir hunter wants something that he has culled himself. By preference he will hammer, hew or slice it off from some monument or landmark. That is why it costs Uncle Sam a young fortune to guard his treasures of history, wonder and beauty. Whatever public building you enter your cane, umbrella or whatever you may have that would make a good hammer is taken from you and checked, and at the Congressional library and Corcoran Art gallery you are watched very closely lest you might get an opportunity to use your heels. These two places are particularly enticing to the vandal, with all their statuary and carved marble.

Unfortunately the Washington monument has not been so well guarded, consequently it is badly scarred by the depredations of the souvenir fiends. Inside it is very dim in spots, the light being supplied by an occasional incandescent lamp, along the stairway. It is in this atmosphere that vandalism flourishes. Like white squares amid the blacks of a huge checkerboard stand the memorial slabs presented by the states in the Union at the time of the monument's erection and by the societies and organizations of the country wishing their names to me immortalized at the national capital. There are more than 150 of these, and many of them are in a distressful condition of mutilation. Missing heads, arms, legs and drapery from the statuary bear eloquent witness to the appreciation of visitors who were so favorably impressed with the monument that they couldn't tear themselves away without taking something with them to remember it by. Just exactly what value, real or sentimental, the left ear lobe of the goddess of prosperity, for instance, can have for any person is hard for a sane man to understand. Somebody got it, however.

Most of the slabs presented by the states bear simply names and dates in large, bold letters that defy umbrellas and the like, and these remain untouched save by pencils that mark their owners' names, only to have their traces washed off on the next cleaning day. But of the delicate carving there is little left. The handsomest slab, though one of the smallest, measuring 3 by 5 feet, is that presented by the American Medical association, representing a group of the fathers of medicine. It is about midway up the monument, about where climbers rest, and about four feet from the floor, a convenient reach. Hence the condition of the figures—two headless and three armless. Two landings above is a slab representing a locomotive. The locomotive looks as if it had got the worst of a collision. The souvenir hunters did it. Not far away is a large slab occupying the center of one wall for a height of six feet. In its present condition it would do for a puzzle picture. Before the enthusiastic tourists got at it with their umbrellas and canes it represented a fire engine of the old type. A volunteer fire department of some city presented it. Probably the name of the city is in some old record. It isn't on the slab. Once it was there, but the souvenir sharks got it. One thing that they haven't got is the fine carving of a pelican, the symbol of the state of Louisiana. The reason is that instead of being a bas-relief, the pelican is carved into the stone, intaglio fashion, and no predatory umbrella can dig this out.

When most of the vandalism in the monument ocurred no one knows, but it probably took place before the checking system was there compelling visitors to leave all potential implements of destruction before going up the monument. Great protest against this order is made by the camera fiend, who generally wants to take a birdseye view of the city from the top of the monument. But he has to do his best without his tripod, for that triple crowbar stays below with the umbrellas and canes.

At Mount Vernon there is a small army of "spotters" on the lookout for the worker of souvenir iniquity. A quarter admission is charged, and the money goes to defray the expense of guarding the place. In Washington's old home there is one thing that strikes the notice by its contrast to the prevailing simplicity—it is the carved mantelpiece of Carrara marble in the dining room. One who is not a vandal cannot gaze upon it without anathematizing the whole race of relic seekers. Even with watchers in every room some individual managed to "get in his work" and knock off the head of a galloping deer in the center of the group. The animal remained headless for months. Then one day back came the head in a little box postmarked Paris. The culprit had realized the evil of his ways, the villainy of his vandalism. Said the accompanying note: "It did not occur to me in my own country, where everything is so perfectly preserved, the outrage that it is to mutilate historic places for relics. Here nothing is preserved; everything is chipped and marred and broken by travelers like myself. I return herewith," etc. Signed—not at all.

The head was stuck on, the glue stained the marble, and the milk white deer has a yellow streak around his neck.—Washington Star.

LIGHTNING CALCULATORS.

Wonderful Ability of the Negro Children In the West Indies.

"One of the oddest things I came across in my wanderings," said a traveler recently returned from the West Indies, "was the extraordinary aptitude of negro children for mental arithmetic. I visited a good many of the public schools and saw some astonishing exhibitions of this faculty, which is probably the last with which one would credit the grandchildren of African savages, as many of the West Indian negro children are. The currency of the islands is of course British, so that calculations of any sort are more complicated than with us. Yet an inspector or visitor can ask a school full of ragged urchins what would be the cost of seven gross of handkerchiefs at 5 pence 3 farthings apiece and receive the answer almost as soon as the words are out of his mouth, and doubtless long before he had himself worked it out. This can be kept up all day to the great enjoyment of the children, who regard that sort of thing as sport.

"The same children, when confronted with a reader, may make sad work of it and seem certainly little above the average. Even when made to do sums on a slate they are not brighter than most white children. Perhaps that statement should be qualified, for there is no doubt that the children of pure blooded Africans develop phenomenally for the first five or six years of their lives and, indeed, until twelve or thirteen years old are fully the equals, intellectually, of white children. I have never seen white babies as intelligent as some of these negro infants at the same age. But when past twelve their minds seem full grown, and it is not easy to teach them, except in cases here and there. All these observations, however, apply to children of negroes whose parents or grandparents were brought from Africa when full grown.

"There are many West Indian negroes who do not speak English, and there are large societies named according to the part of Africa from which the members or their parents came. A Nangobar, for instance, would not think of joining a Kongo society. So they all stand much nearer to Africa than do our negroes, which makes the observation of their characteristics very interesting. Unfortunately, they do not seem to retain to any marked degree this faculty for rapid calculation when they reach manhood. And even if they did they would be so backward in other respects that their value as clerks would be slight."—New York Tribune.

THE SUMMER OF 1816.

One Locality in Which It Practically Never Happened.

If the recollections of the Danville (Ills.) News are not at fault, the summer of 1816 cannot, strictly speaking, be said to have ever set in. Along in April, when the garden should have been exhibiting signs of active life, the snow on the ground was from four to six feet deep and frozen solid for half its depth. In May only the surface of it had melted, and the ground could not be reached for planting purposes except by tunneling. In June snow had disappeared, but the ground was still frozen hard, and along toward the latter part of that month another fall occurred which made sleighing good in Danville and vicinity for several days.

On the morning of July 4 water froze in the wells and pitchers of the early settlers, and there was excellent skating on the neighborhood ponds. Snow fell toward noon, and the usual Independence day exercises were held in a church warmed by blazing log fires and were participated in by men and women in midwinter clothing.

The spring, when it came in reality, was so short and severe that no vegetation could thrive in it. In August the corn, which had struggled against adverse circumstances, went to tassel so early that it was useless except as fodder. Corn from other parts of the country brought unheard of prices, and for seed to be used in the spring of 1817 farmers were obliged to provide themselves with corn grown in 1815. All breadstuffs went up, and flour a year afterward sold at $17 a barrel.

As a matter of fact, there was no summer in the vicinity of Danville in 1816, and the files of the Danville News for that period prove that the weather experts in those days attributed the extraordinary meteorological conditions to spots on the sun.

The winters preceding and following the severe summer were intensely cold, and, as the people in those days knew none of the conveniences of steam heated flats and were wholly ignorant of comforts derived from contact with the modern janitor, their sufferings, it will be supposed, must of necessity have been intense.

The public health was never better. There were the usual quiltings and log raisings everywhere. Although the crops were a failure, the spirits of the people never drooped, and their confidence in Illinois as a corn producer never weakened. The sturdy pioneers and first settlers went about their business just as usual.

THE LATEST AS TO NERVES AND STRENGTH

It is not muscle so much as the nerves back of muscle which show one's strength and power of endurance. And the study with able physicians of to-day is how to keep the nerves in perfect health and fitted for the strain of every-day living. Headache of every type, nerve weakness, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, languor, restlessness, nervous dyspepsia, muscular weakness, brain weariness, poor circulation,—a thousand different unpleasant feelings and symptoms are due to nerve waste and nerve weakness,—especially in women and children. But how can all this be prevented, one will ask? How can my broken-down constitution be repaired, and nerve strength and full, robust health be secured. Just two points to remember: Determine that you will grow strong in nerves and health, and decide to use at once that most famous nerve cure, COCELLIN. It is delicious in taste, quick in action and makes the wearied nerves tingle with renewed strength and every function the stronger and faculty the brighter by its use. Druggists sell it.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

TUESDAY MORNING. JAN. 14.

THE COTTON CROP OF 1901-02.

A T Wilson & Co.'s Estimate of 9,445,704 Bales—No Reason to Doubt its Accuracy—Higher Prices.

(Special Star Telegram.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Messrs. R T. Wilson & Co. to day published their estimate of the current crop. It is 9,445,704 bales. They state that they "have obtained the information for this purpose from bankers and from people who raise, gin, buy and transport cotton in all the cotton growing sections of the South." Messrs. R T. Wilson & Co.'s estimated for the past eleven years as compared with the actual out-turn are as follows:

Crop year.	Estimate	Actual crop.
1900-01	10,263 000	10 425 000
1899 00	8,756 000	9,436 000
1898-99	10,523,000	11.275 000
1897-98	10,370,000	11 200,000
1896-97	8 174,000	8 750 000
1895 96	7,188,000	7 162 000
1894-95	9 448.000	9,893 000
1893 94	7,093,000	7 527,000
1892 93	6.897,000	6,717 000
1891-92	8 497.000	9,038 000
1890 91	8 214,000	8,658,000

It is to be noticed that the most substantial varation shown by their figures was in the year 1899 -1900, when it is admitted that although the commercial crop turned out to be 9,426,000 bales, the amount of cotton actually grown did not exceed 9,100,000, the balance having come from the surplus held over from the previous unprecentedly large production. Upon the average for the past eleven years, Messrs, R. T. Wilson & Co.'s estimate have been within 300,000 bales of the actual out turn. Notwithstanding the fact that the bears violently assailed the creditability of Messrs. R. T. Wilson & Co.'s estimate, there seems no reason in my mind to doubt its substantial accuracy, and every proof to which I can subject it fully bears out the figures that they have published. They are, moreover, practically sustained by such authorities as the United States Government, Messrs. Latham, Alexander & Co, the New York Journal of Commerce, Messrs. J. H. Parker & Co., and by our own figures, published on the 25th of November which represented the most exhaustive investigation that I had been up to that time able to make. I am now prosecuting a fresh inquiry with a view of determining the comparative stocks of cotton at all South ern towns having a population of more than three hundred people. An effort has been made to disparage Messrs. Wilson & Co.'s estimate by putting emphasis upon the present relatively large movement of cotton, which is running on a scale equal to that of last year when the crop turned out approximately 10,400,000. I have previously entered into an elaborate argument to show that the movement is not an indication of the supply but is rather an evidence of the demand. I have estimated the January movement this year at one million bales, (probably in excess of the actual figures), but assuming that we had received this quantity during January, we shall have in sight on the 1st of February, out of this year's crop, 7,-804,000 bales.

It appears that the movement last year was the slowest on record, while that of 1889-'90 was the most rapid on record. It also appears that in 1894 '95, when we had a crop of only 9 900,000, there was at the end of January nearly 400,000 bales more in sight than there will be at the end of January this year, and that heavy January movements are not infrequently found in the case of exceptionally small crops. Figuring upon the percentages given, it appears that if the movement of this year has been as fast as the fastest of the past fourteen years, the total production is only 8,930,000 bales. If it is as slow as the slowest, i. e. that of last year, the crop is 10,400,000. If it has moved with the average rapidity of the past fourteen years, the crop is 9,565,000. I believe that the movement this year, especially since the 1st of January, has been one of exceptional rapidity and I cannot, therefore, see any reason to doubt the substantial accuracy of Messrs. R. T. Wilson & Co's figures.

My reasons for believing in the rapid movement of the crop are ably stated in a circular from the Gulf Points Trading Co., of Galveston, Tex., of Jan. 6th, who estimated the crop nearly two months ago at 9,964,-000.

In view of the foregoing, I cannot see any reason to believe that the present crop can substantially exceed Messrs. Wilson & Co 's estimate, and with such a supply of cotton extreme prices for the article are inevitable later on in the season.

TRAINS IN COLLISION.

Two Men Killed and Several Others Came Near Being Burned Alive.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WICHITA, KAS., Jan. 13.—A freight train running twenty miles an hour on the O'Keene, Oklahoma, branch of the Rock Island road, crashed into a work train standing on a siding at O'Keene early this morning and killed Bridge Foreman H K. Bear, of this city, and Carpenter E A. Colby, of Galva, Kas. The men in the work car were still asleep and were buried under the debris, which caught fire and threatened to roast every one of them. The crew of the freight train and some citizens by strong efforts saved them. Several persons were injured.

The cause of the wreck was the malicious breaking of a switch lock and the throwing of the switch by some unknown person.

The breach of promise suit brought by Miss Portia Knight, the American actress, against the Duke of Manchester, has after all been settled out of court, the Duke paying Miss Knight £1,000 and defraying the costs of the legal proceedings.

EXTRAVAGANCE AND FRAUD.

Stir Caused by Proposition to Open Federal Soldiers' Homes to Ex-Confederates — Only Two Democrats Supported It.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—In the Senate to-day Mr. Nelson, of Minnesota, called up the bill providing for the establishment of a Department of Commerce. He explained the necessity which he said existed for the passage of such a measure, and was presented with questions by several Senators, who said that sufficient time had not been allowed for looking into the merits of the measure. Senator Teller criticised that feature relating to the transfer of the geological survey, while Senator Hale said tha the bill provided for a department which ultimately would be one of the largest in the government. After some further discussion the bill went over, subj ct to call by Mr. Nelson.

A resolution by Senator Hale, providing for the printing of a number of copies of the report of the Schley court of inquiry, was referred to the Committee on Printing.

The Senate was in executive session for an hour and a half and adjourned at 3:12 P. M.

House of Representatives.

The House of Representatives spent the day in general discussion of the Pension Appropriation bill, the first of the annual budgets. The debate took a wide range. Mr. Groavenor, of Ohio, and Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, took occasion to denounce a report presented to the last G. A. R. encampment criticising the course of themselves and other members of Congress on the veteran "preference" bill which was defeated at the last session. They explained that their opposition to the bill was due to the incorporation in the bill of a clause, which had not been endorsed by the G. A. R., placing veterans of the Spanish war in the preferential class.

Mr. Rixey, of Virginia, caused something of a stir on the Democratic side by advancing a proposition to open the doors of National Soldiers' Homes to ex-Confederates and to furnish Federal aid to State Confederate homes. Mr. Richardson, of Alabama, was the only Democrat who joined Mr. Rixey in support of it.

Mr. Barney, Wisconsin, in charge of the bill, said the estimates for the payment of pensions had been reduced from $144 000,000 to $138 500 000. He was asked by Mr. Richardson, Tennessee, why the amount for pensions decreased five and a half millions while the number of pensioners was said to be larger.

Mr. Barney explained that this was accounted for by the fact that the arrearages were decreasing and the number of large pensions (those from $50 to $75 a month) was also decreasing. In reply to another question he stated that the commissioner of pensions believed that the high tide of pension payments had been reached and the amount required probably would remain stationary for some years.

Mr. Talbert, South Carolina, delivered a general speech on the subject of pensions to show the growing extravagance and fraud of the present system. He said the pension roll had been a roll of honor. He thought the practice of passing special pension bills should be abandoned.

Mr. Rixey, Virginia, took occasion to submit an argument in favor of a bill introduced by him to-day to admit Confederate veterans to National soldiers' homes and to extend the same national aid to State Confederate homes in the South as was extended to State Union homes. Mr. Rixey said that a somewhat similar bill introduced by him in the last Congress had provoked considerable hostility and criticism in the South and in the North, but he believed the time had come when the doors of Union homes could be opened to Confederate veterans.

The restrictions against ex Confederates participating in the government and against ex-Confederates holding commissions in the army or navy having been removed he argued that the barrier which stands across the path of ex-Confederate soldiers should also be removed.

Mr. Richardson, Tennessee, the Democratic leader, interposed to declare that never would he be willing to see ex-Confederates enter Union homes.

The debate grew lively, differences of opinion developing on the Democratic side. Mr. Richardson, Alabama, sided with Mr. Rixey, while Mr. Lamb, Virginia, Mr. Bartlett, Georgia, and others opposed the suggestion. Mr. Rixey declared that he proposed to continue to advocate the passage of the bill he had introduced, whether it proved popular or not.

Mr. Gaines, Tennessee, secured the floor and talked for some time about the result of his observations in the Philippines on his recent trip to the archipelago.

At the conclusion of Mr. Gaines' remarks, Mr. Lever, South Carolina, formally announced the death of the late Representative Stokes of his State, which occurred last summer, and offered the customary resolutions of regret, which were adopted, after which, at 4:55 P. M., as a further mark of respect, the House adjourned.

LYNCHING OF ALIENS.

Bill in the Senate to Give Federal Courts Jurisdiction in Such Cases.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Representative Crumpacker, of Indiana, to-day introduced a bill for the punishment of persons taking part in the lynching of an alien. Those who conspire in such a lynching are made subject to death or life imprisonment, while meeting to organize such lynching is made a felony. The Federal courts are given jurisdiction of such offences and persons who have participated in lynchings are disqualified from serving as jurors. The measure is designed to cover cases similar to the lynching of Italians in Louisiana and Mississippi,

ANTI-BRITISH CARTOONS IN GERMAN NEWSPAPERS.

Remarkable Article in the London Times. The Wisdom of the Publication Much Questioned

By Cable to the Morning Star.

LONDON, Jan 13.—A remarkable article appears in to day's Times under the caption of "Literature of German Anglophobia," recounting the character of the anti-British cartoons which have appeared in the German newspapers, which the Times says "in coarseness, obscenity and venom are without a parallel in modern times."

The wisdom of the publication of the article at this juncture is much questioned.

The Times' article, which is two columns long, says:

"These papers are not gutter-sheets, but are sold everywhere, at the stations of the State railroads, even at Potsdam station, where the Emperor is constantly travelling. He was finally obliged to personally order their removal. Neither are these papers anonymous. One of the most infamous of all, entitled 'The Boer War,' bears on the title pages the names of persons distinguished in the literary and artistic world of Germany. It is difficult to find words to convey a notion of the filth which its cultured artists and writers venture to lay before its cultured German readers. British soldiers are represented as robbing the dead; Mr. Chamberlain's state coach is depicted as a cart laden with skeletons, and King Edward is shown dead drunk in his bedroom, receiving the news of Cronje's surrender. But the crowning piece is a cartoon entitled 'Hero Worship.' The then Princess of Wales, with Queen Victoria, the Prince of Wales and the young princesses by her side, is decorating a youthful soldier. The legend underneath reads, textually 'An English Princess decorating the youngest soldier in the British army with the Victoria Cross because, although only thirteen, he has already outraged eight Boer women.'

"This obscenity, sold in respectable shops, was eagerly bought by the public and lies on fashionable drawing-room tables."

NEGRO MAN ARRESTED.

In Connection With the Mysterious Assault On Mrs. Ada Gilbert Dennis.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—The detectives to-day arrested Richard Cole, colored, and locked him up "on suspicion" in connection with the mysterious assault on Mrs. Ada Gilbert Dennis, the fashionable dressmaker, on the ninth of December. The police are investigating as to what leads them to think Cole may have some knowledge of the crime or some connection with it. The arrested man is 22 years of age. He had been working at the Dennis establishment as porter and bundle-carrier about five months, and had borne a good reputation. He was implicitly trusted by Mrs. Dennis and in her statement to the police yesterday she manifested an anxiety that no suspicion be cast upon any of her servants or employes in connection with the assault.

COMMITTEE OF SEVEN.

Senate Resolution to Investigate the War in the Philippines.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

ANNAPOLIS, MD., Jan. 13.—Former United States Senator Gorman arrived here this afternoon and is to-night the guest of Governor Smith at the executive mansion. To-morrow at noon will witness his re-election to the United States Senate, to succeed Senator Geo. L. Wellington, whose term will expire in March, 1903. No other name than that of Mr. Gorman is even thought of in this connection, and not a single Democrat in either branch will vote against him.

It was thought at one time that the six Democrats who joined Isaac Lobe Straus and the Republicans the other day in voting to abruptly adjourn the House of Delegates might possibly go further and take some steps to delay the election of Mr. Gorman, but it is announced to-night that nothing of the sort is contemplated and that there will be no hitch in to morrow's programme, so far as the Senatorship is concerned.

THE TUNNEL DISASTER.

Injured Improving—Coroner's Investigation to Begin Next Thursday.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—District Attorney Jerome said to day that everything would be ready to proceed with the coroner's investigation into the causes of the tunnel disaster on last Thursday. To-morrow experts of the State railroad commission will be examined by the district attorney, and if they prove to be satisfactory witnesses the district attorney will not call experts of his own. An examination by the State board of railroad commissioners will be begun on January 20th.

All those hurt in the wreck were reported improving to-day.

IN THE FOURTH ROUND.

Tommy Feltz Awarded the Decision Over Danny Mack at Charleston, S. C.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Jan. 13.—Tommy Feltz, of Savannah, was awarded the decision over Danny Mack, of New York, here to-night in the star bout of a programme offered by the Southern Athletic Club. Mack was clearly outclassed by the Georgian and his backers decided not to allow him to go on after the fourth round. The contest was snappy at times while it lasted, both men taking considerable punishment.

SENATOR GORMAN

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BOLD ROBBERY BY TWO MASKED MEN

Raided a Pool Room in Kansas City, Missouri, With Drawn Revolvers.

THIEVES TOOK OVER $1,500.

Made the Proprietor and His Assistants Lie Down On the Floor—A Third Man Guarded the Entrance. Robbers Escaped.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

KANSAS, CITY, MO., Jan. 13.—Two young men of slight build with handkerchiefs tied across the lower portions of their faces, entered Harry B. Chick's pool rooms on Baltimore avenue, one block from the center of the city, early this evening. With drawn revolvers they commanded the proprietor, cashier and three other employes to lie down on the floor. They secured between $1.500, and $2,500 and escaped. A third man, supposed to be a confederate but not masked, guarded the entrance while the robbery was committed. Jimmy Driscoll, an employe who did not readily comply with the command to lie down, received a heavy blow on the head with a revolver from one of the robbers. The proprietor and his assistants were counting the money that had been received during the day. They were the only persons in the place.

CHICAGO'S BOARD OF TRADE.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—The Chicago Board of Trade, at its annual meeting to day, put the stamp of approval on Admiral Dewey's minority report in the Schley controversy and, as a representative body of Chicago business men, sent a memorial to Congress asking that the circumstances and events that may throw light on the situation may be examined into. This action was not taken without much discussion and objections from several members, who expressed themselves satisfied with the report of the naval commission. Following are the resolutions:

"Resolved, That we believe it is the duty of Congress to review the records of the commission, to examine into the circumstances and events tending to throw light on the controversy, and to announce judgment as to who was in command at the battle of Santiago and as to the conduct of Commodore Schley on that occasion.

"Resolved, That a copy of the resolutions be forwarded to Admiral Schley and to the country's Representatives and Senators in Congress."

BATTLESHIP ILLINOIS.

Expected to be in Attendance at the Coronation Ceremonies in England.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The big battleship Illinois has just come out of the floating dry dock at the New Orleans naval station, having successfully demonstrated the possibilities of that structure. The department has been obliged to change its plans in respect to the vessel's movements. It will be necessary to omit the call at Pensacola, which had been promised to the Florida people and instead, the ship, after touching at Havana for coal, will proceed directly north to Newport News. Under the terms of the contract of the builders the two days sea trial must be had soon and the ship must be thoroughly inspected by the board to make sure that the contractors do not escape any proper liability for deterioration. It is expected that the Illinois will be one of the American warships present at the coronation ceremonies.
